Presentation

The MSc in Luxury Management & Marketing, in association with London College of Fashion, is a 16-month programme that is approved by the Conference of Grandes Ecoles. Students start their course in September with general management lessons at the European campus of EMLYON Business School. As, by its nature, the luxury industry is international and prestigious, students continue their course at the London College of Fashion campus in London in February and March with specialised classes in the international fashion industry. After their time in Europe, and in order to discover the peculiarities of the Asian luxury market, a key one for the industry, students spend a whole semester in China at the EMLYON Asia campus in Shanghai.

Course content

In Lyon, students will attend classes on the fundamentals of management that they will apply to the Luxury industry in an international context. Example classes: Marketing, Financial Analysis, Macroeconomics for Managers, Contract Law in an International Economy, etc.

The classes at the London College of Fashion include Merchandising in the Field of Fashion, Fashion and Style Studies, creating your own brand and product development.

Through specialised luxury industry classes, as well as a specific in-company project, at the EMLYON campus in Shanghai students will discover a different development model, as well as the challenges and opportunities of this key region.

Group work, company visits and managing real projects at sector companies are interspersed throughout the course and reinforce the programme's experience-based approach. Finally, a compulsory work placement abroad, from four to nine months, depending on the student's professional plans, rounds off the course.

Course format:

- Start of academic year : September 2015
- Duration : 16 months
- Course followed in Lyon, London, and Shanghai
- Taught in English

Job prospects

- Trade Marketing Coordinator - Audemars Piguet (Switzerland)
